

DR KAREN SHU-YAO WANG

Dr. Karen Shu-Yao Wang was born in southern Taiwan. She graduated from Kaohsiung Medical University in 1991 after which she enrolled as a resident dentist in the Dental Department at Mackay Memorial Hospital, Taitung, for training in surgery and general dentistry. Following her graduation, she was a general practitioner for eight years before attending a post-graduate program in orthodontics. She obtained a Master's Degree and qualified as a member of the Taiwan Board of Orthodontics. She believes that working as a general practitioner for eight years before progressing on to become an orthodontist has given her a unique insight into some of the difficult issues faced by practitioners.

Dr. Wang has been a part-time lecturer at the Taipei Medical University for more than 10 years. She has taught in the College of Oral Medicine, including the School of Dentistry, the School of Dental Technology, and the School of Oral Hygiene.

Dr. Wang became a part-time attending doctor at the Shin Kong Wu Ho-Su Memorial Hospital in Taipei from 2003. She was appointed Chief of the Orthodontic Department after her transferring to a full-time faculty.

Dr. Wang's interested in continuously learning new things and acquiring new skills to benefit her patients has led to her now also specializing in aligner orthodontic treatment, lingual orthodontic treatment as well as traditional orthodontics.

In addition to a busy work schedule, Dr. Wang is very active in the dentistry community in Taiwan. She serves in several organizing committees of Taiwan Association of Orthodontists and Taiwan Orthodontic Society. She is also an active member of the community and concerned about education in general. Dr. Wang joined the Family Committee of Taipei Zhongshan Girls High School where she was elected to be the Vice Chairperson of the Committee in 2013.

Dr. Wang and her husband who is a prosthodontic specialist opened their own practice a few years ago. Now they provide comprehensive interdisciplinary care to their patients.
